References are invaluable in helping market you to potential employers. Many times references can help assist in securing a position, and increase the amount of a salary offer. Please take the time to come up with six professional references; two to three supervisors, two to three peers, and two subordinates (depending on what stage you are currently at in your career, you may not have this many). By speaking with references from three viewpoints, I'll be able to paint a 360° picture of you as an employee. Make sure not to list anyone who would jeopardize your current employment, and also let them know that I will be calling. Thank you!
